Why Publish in This Journal

Publishing in “Journal of Biomusical Engineering” comes with a number of benefits, including the following:

- Wide dissemination. As an open access journal, all articles published in the journal are freely available online with no subscription or registration barriers. Every interested reader can download, print, read, and cite your article.
- Quick Publication. Our editorial staff work hard to speed the peer review process so all manuscripts receive fast and rigorous peer review. Accepted articles appear online as soon as they are accepted, and shortly after, the final published version is released online following a thorough in-house production process.
- Professional Publishing Services. The journal provides professional copyediting, typesetting, graphics editing, and reference validation to all accepted manuscripts.
- Keeping Your Copyright. Authors retain the copyright of their manuscripts, which are published using the “Creative Commons Attribution License,” which permits unrestricted use of all published material provided that it is properly cited.
- Extensive Indexing. The journal is indexed in several major indexing databases to ensure the maximum possible visibility of each published article.
